EDITOR'S NOTE

Our modern reality is that sometimes people with religious, spiritual, emotional or psychological vulnerabilities will turn to psychics when their issues are not resolved by therapists or religious advisors, psychics and spiritualists, however, are unregulated in our society, thus there is a greater opportunity for fraud.

Our team, here at Dark Clandestine devoted much of our time unmasking these 'self-styled psychics and faith healers', more appropriately charlatans and exploiters. We do, however, keep it in mind that alot of people may not agree with our research which is totally fine. Our only aim is to unleash the truth and warn the people against such treacherous activities.

Seers or Scammers?

Interview with the 'Amazing Robert' where he exposes all the tricks the pandemic, people felt vulnerable and lost more than ever. Some sought out a therapist or religious advisor, but many turned to psychics. This rise in clients for the fake spiritualists led to their businesses thriving, which in turn resulted in the innocent people being looted. Among a few examples are: a 54 year old woman lost $25,000 to a psychic who promised to connect her with a loved one, a 73 year old man lost $50,000, and expensive jewelry to a magicine in hopes of winning back his ex-girlfriend.

SINCE

MAGICIANS, PSYCHICS AND FRAUD

Other examples include an 82 year old woman in Seattle who gave $20,000 to a psychic for information about her son's relationship. When she complained to the police, they refused to follow up on her case due to lack of evidence against the magicine. The purpose of quoting such examples is to warn all of you out there against such evil- minded, wicked, vicious and corrupt people. The only God they believe in is money and all their actions are driven by their greed for money.

All about IT

A psychic is an individual who professes to utilize extrasensory discernment to recognize data stowed away from the ordinary detects.

Psychics who benefit by professing to call the dead in shows in scenes Motels. These are great, amazingly beneficial days for the ectoplasm-related industry. As perone market examination, there are almost 87,000 mystic "organizations" in America, creating some $4 billion in income in 2021. Recently, innovation has changed the matter of conversing with the dead and made new sorts of openings for mystics to bait clients yet in addition new ways for cynics to flip that innovation right back at them.

The topic of extortion by mystics is an intriguing and muddled one. Fraud is generally considered as straightforward duplicity rehearsed for cash. In any case, with mystics there are events of evidently intentional deceit in which there was no compensation to be gotten.

The way to disentangling fraud by mystics is to discredit there is any level headed to emotional believability to the portrayals they make, and to connect these portrayals with surprising exchanges of cash or property to the mystic, or financing of their way of life.

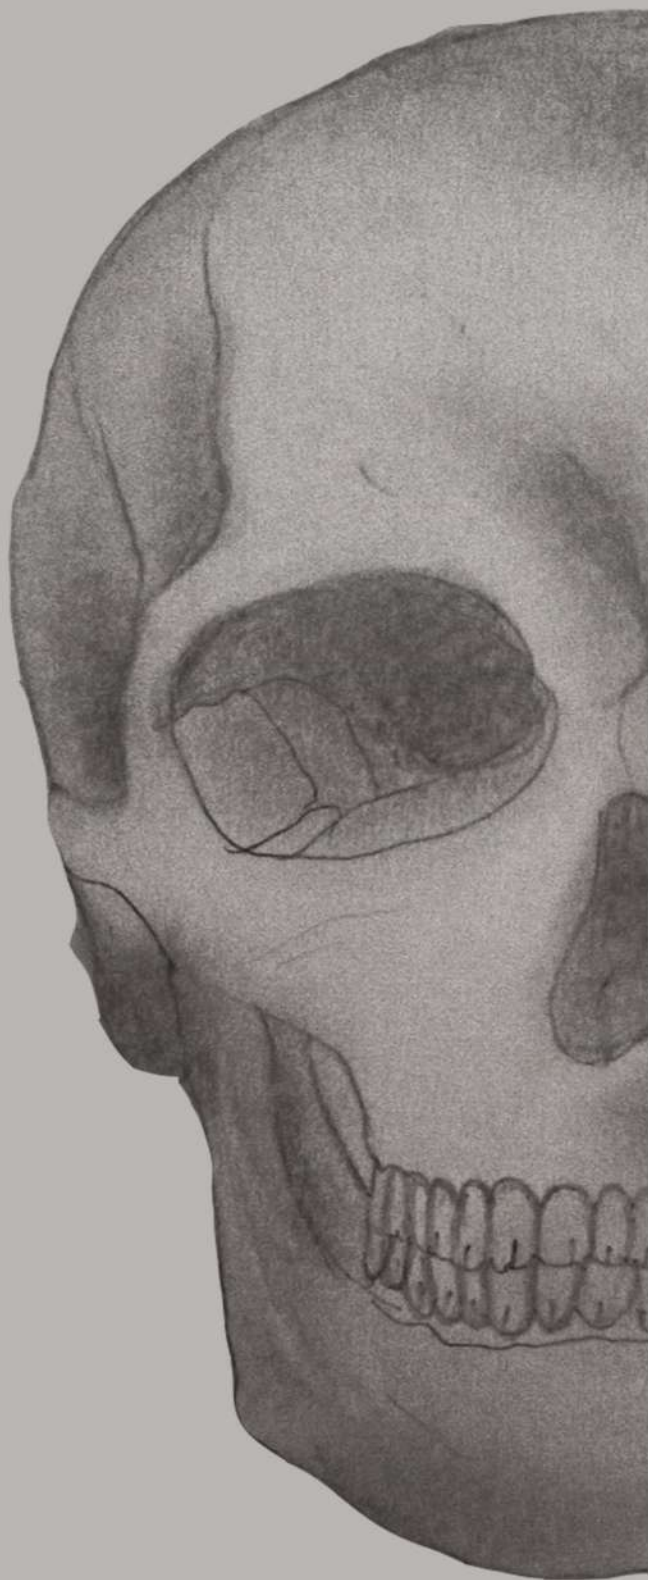

Another victim of these inhumane acts

Last week, on 27th of November, a pregnant woman in Peshawar hammered a nail into her head, following a fake pir's (psychic in urdu) instructions, so that she could give birth to a boy as per her husband's desire who allegedly threatened to divorce his wife and remarry if she did not give birth to a son, despite the fact that she already had three daughters. The woman's ultrasound revealed that she was again going to have a fourth daughter which led her to approach a psychic for help.

The 'aamil' (spiritualist) asked for a large amount of money in order to perform a ritual which would ensure her giving birth to a son. However, the woman told him how she couldn't afford all that money so as an alternative, the psychic told her to bring him half the amount and to compensate for the other half, she had to hammer a nail in her head. The woman desperate for a solution did as she was told. Doctors confirmed that she died due to excess bleeding.

Incidences like these break our hearts when we realize the problems faced by a significant majority of people despite living in this progressed times. We must never forget that everyone is not as privileged, hence every possible platform must be utilized to voice this crucial matter. Such acts are barbarous and merciless. It's high time people realize the truth behind these so called seers and psychics.

People as a general refuse to believe in occult which is natural since it's hard for the human mind to acknowledge something obscure which they cannot perceive through their senses. In this modern age of progress there are uncountable ways of acquiring desires and getting abstruse questions answered.

But there are times when all tracks and trails lead to a dead end and the frustration a person experiences reaches a point of utter anguish. That is when the imposters sweep in with their beguiling facade of cleverly woven lies.

Deep into everyone's heart there's always a negligible belief in the unknown. When nothing helps, it compels a person to yearn for a greater power. A potent force that does not only describe how to solve the problem but instead is capable of solving it.

Systems of fortune telling, divination, reading celestial signs, telekinesis and tarot cards date back to the ancient of Egyptian priests and Asian gypsies. There is however, no scientific proof of such powers. Psychics have long since deluded people by taking advantage of their weaknesses and in return acquiring huge profits. They are either pitiful liars or if a person's fate is worse, immersed in black magic. For the latter the people who ask for the help of magicians are in fact asking the devil for help.

The devil does nothing but drag the poor wretched souls into an unending chasm of calamity. If the people try to break free after realizing their mistake to ask a psychic involved in black magic for help, they have to face the consequences by dealing with terrorizing events.

These events are also given birth by these psychics so that the person would eventually have to return to them for help. It binds the victims in a limbo of horror with no way out. As for the former, the art of divination using tarot cards emerged in Egypt here. It's claimed that tarot cards originated from a sacred book called The Book of Thoth.

Tarot cards depict simple images, which when put together narrate simple blunt stories allowing the customer to predict for themselves. They are not the specified truth but instead a very simple, basic idea which fits everywhere trickering the people to believe that it's real.

Reality of the biggest 'SCAMS'

Q & A

Through a friend of a friend, we found Helen Barbara, a 46 year old psychic medium who agreed to share the secrets of how these 'mind games' are played. To her clients, Helen appears as a gifted clairvoyant who has been practicing dark arts for almost 18 years and whose grandmother possessed the "second sight". She, however, confessed that her art was a mixture of social media research, clever decoration, and sizing people up, or in her own words, 'a scam'. She gave us an exclusive tour of the 'room' where her clients come and the setting is far more low-key than we expected. There's a vague odor of stained carpets and school lunch halls giving it a very chaotic but mystic aura. Yet, despite the apparent mess, every item has its place.

How much do you charge for a reading?

"18 years ago, I started with $30 per reading. Now it varies but on average one reading can cost you thousands of dollars but then you get a 10% discount if you book at least five follow up meetings. I charge the most from people who want to communicate with a dead loved one because they're so desperate and would agree to anything."

How come you know some personal details about your clients or in your own words 'research'? How is it done?

"More often than not, the person coming for the reading does most of the work themselves. If I make some vague comment about getting hurt in a previous relationship, they make the connection to an evil ex." As for the research, I tell them I need their IDs so I can send directions to my house, but every now and again, I do a little study.
